1. No changes of occupation were observed at Garz airfield. Air activity was less intensive than previously. This reduction of air activity may probably be connected with construction work which will presumably resume.

2. According to an order, timber planking. Workers were urgently needed for this construction projects and advertisements had been placed in several papers. Since male workers were scarce, female workers were requested from Rostock. There was a total deficit of 300 workers. Since the construction work did not progress according to the schedule, the construction manager was deposed. In the second half of July, a new construction manager was to be appointed, and work was scheduled to be done in two shifts each working for 10 hours. A layout sketch of the airfield was drawn up.

3. The number of workers employed at Garz airfield by VEB Ing. Tiefbau Brandenburg amounted to 254 workers on 20 June, 306 workers on 30 June, and 318 workers on 10 July.
